Summary

2025 was a year characterized by both strong commercial progress and a continued challenging market picture. Despite geopolitical uncertainty, weak demand in our largest segment and significant currency effects, JLT performed stably and better than the industry as a whole.

The strong increase in order intake and several strategic deals show that our premium position is strong, while cost savings, portfolio renewal and broader market exposure have strengthened our resilience.

This year's result is thus not only a recovery, but also an acknowledgment that our long-term priorities create sustainable value and provide a solid platform for the market's expected recovery in 2026.
